

ALBERTA FINANCIAL HELP AT NEXT SESSION MAYBE EXTENDED

basis of Alberta's financial default was the refusal by the Dominion when the province sought a loan a year ago to pay a bond maturity. They united in saying that if Alberta had been given the loan at that time it might never have cut interest on the loan.

LOAN COUNCIL

The finance minister traced the history of the loan council proposal, which when some provinces refused to participate.

At that time, British Columbia refused to come under the council and a similar answer was made when it applied for money. The Dominion refused to accept a conditional acceptance from Manitoba.

Saskatchewan was agreeable and later was advanced $100,000 by the Bank of Canada "without prompting" from this government. The slightest degree—in fact I know nothing about it," Mr. Dunning said.

NOT PLEDGED

He said the Dominion was not pledged to give equal financial treatment to the western provinces, but only equitable treatment. Alberta could not be charged that Alberta was discriminated against on employment loans because Alberta had requested none.

The same thing was true of seed grain loans although this year, when Alberta's seed bank was photographed above as it was set out in the bank's report, the did not need cash from this government because it withheld from the bondholders.

HARD FOR COUNTRY

Mr. Dunning said it was not for him to criticize the financial policies of provinces or as minister of finance he was bound to say "I seriously regret that the credit of the Dominion when we have three, four or five provinces doing it, it will be very difficult for the country and the people of the country."

If the budget forecast for this year proved accurate, Alberta would have $1,200,000 for debt reduction, Mr. Dunning emphasized. In view of that, he asked if the Dominion would be justified in going into debt itself to provide it more money for the province.

FRANK, DIGNIFIED

Mr. Blackmore said the report of the Bank of Canada "was a frank and dignified, accurately and justly weighed, frank and dignified."

He good qualities were merited, however, he said, "in that it recommends to the government as unjust discrimination against Alberta." He referred to the bank's advice to the government that no loans should be made to that province until the report of the royal commission on financial relations between provinces and Dominion was received.

Mr. Blackmore proceeded to give a review of Alberta's financial history since it was made a province in 1905, quoting at length from the bank's report. When the U.F.A. government assumed office in Alberta in 1921 there was a debt of $30,000,000.

NEAR $125,000,000

If the government during the comparatively prosperous times that followed could not pay any of that debt, but added greatly to it, now, Mr. Blackmore asked, could it expect to meet its obligations which are now nearly $125,000,000?

"It is not that we want to avoid our debts," he said, "but we want to get our debts in such form that we will have some chance of paying them."

When the Social Credit movement started Alberta's debt was $47,000,000, Mr. Blackmore said, and the financial difficulties now faced had all arisen before the Social Credit government took office. Alberta had been asked to accept the loan council proposal a year ago. Had it accepted there would have been no chance of establishing Social Credit and it was for that purpose the government was established.

EXTREME STEPS

It was to maintain the integrity of its credit and secure the investment of its creditors that the government had taken the extreme steps that had been forced upon it, he said.

No other government could have acted differently. What Alberta was a loan to enable Alberta to carry on until the new budget began to produce results. If that assistance was denied the chief injury would fall upon the people.

PAYING ITS SHARE

People complained of Alberta "taking for Canada's share" of the loan, but Mr. Blackmore said Alberta was not actually a part of Canada that had to take the loan. It was a loan to the national revenue.

In asking for some of these revenues Alberta was asking only what was entitled to be held.

In view of the fact Alberta's financial difficulties arose before the Social Credit government came into existence, Mr. Blackmore urged members to remove from their minds any prejudice against Social Credit when considering the report.

"The Social Credit government

She has ably and honestly striven to meet the debt problem," said Mr. Blackmore. "Who can be sure Social Credit is not the way out. He is unwise who obstructs the progress of Social Credit—a government is unwise if it obstructs Social Credit."

SEND MONEY

"I urge the government," he concluded, "to disregard the bank's report and make loans to Alberta pending the report of the Royal Commission."

RENE PELLETIER (N.C. Press)

River said he was not going to ask any sympathy for Alberta but for justice. He condemned the Bank of Canada for allegedly going outside the proper sphere in commenting on merits of Alberta's financial policies.

That concerned the bank, he said, was the financial condition of the province.

The government was "grossly misinformed" against government of Alberta, said Mr. Pelletier and would have to take the full responsibility for its actions. The Bank of Canada was a creature of the federal government and the responsibility could not be shifted to the bank.

Mr. Pelletier voiced a warning to a section of the press which he said was attempting to break up the government.

During the past few months a "wave of labor unrest has been sweeping through the various sections of the United States, and it has reached its climax recently when a form of unionism known as the Committee for Industrial Organization started its campaign of sit-down strikes under the fiery leadership of John L. Lewis.

The natural result of these sit-down strikes have been to create a mob psychology among the extreme elements of this body, and a black yard of lawlessness began to ferment, although it must be admitted that it is contrary to the wishes of the majority of the members of this new industrial organization and no violence is desired by the labor leaders. However, in many instances these sit-down strikes did have repercussions of an undesirable type of public demonstration against capital in the automobile, merchandising and other branches of trade and industry in the United States.

Now this form of unionism has determined to enter the field of Canadian labor by organizing branches of the Committee for Industrial Organization in every section of the Dominion. The leaders of the C.I.O. John L. Lewis, has taken personal charge of these sit-down plans, and he has appointed a special British subject to head the campaign in Canada. It is said that he will grant charters directly to groups of workers who desire to join only the new organization. The plans were made to gather no less than 5,000,000 members in this country.

On the heels of this announcement, a series of strikes broke out in Canada, and this turmoil centered in the provinces of Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes. But nothing serious resulted.

However, it is impossible to compare the C.I.O. with the I.O.O.F. of 1901 and the amending Act thereto passed earlier at the present session, disapproval of teachers would be made effective only after being confirmed by a majority vote of the electors of the school district, if steps were taken to make such a referendum. This amending bill was introduced by William Tomyn, M.C., Whitford, and had received royal reading in the house.

It is set forth in the bill that it is not applicable to cities. It is also provided that the minimum salary for teachers shall not be less than $640 a year, unless under the Act, a lower rate had been authorized previous to said teacher's engagement.

Further provision is made that notice to terminate contracts taking effect in July, shall be given to the teacher on or before June 20. Dealing with the dismissal of teachers, provision is made that if a ruling is signed by a trustee, the teacher, or five electors, the school district secretary shall call a special meeting of electors either to confirm or disavow the board's action.

The vote at such meeting shall be by ballot, with the majority prevailing. The teacher has the opportunity of being present at this meeting.

"Whether or not the policies of the Alberta government were like those to succeed was no business of the Bank of Canada investigators," declared C. E. Johnston (S.C., Bow River).

Their only concern should have been the financial conditions of the province as they existed. He declared there had been discrimination against the province ever since the Social Credit administration took office.

"King Anthony" Tries To Enjoin Crouching Rites

LONDON, April 12.—The self-styled "King Anthony" Hall still claims to be a "legitimate" and "respectable" institution to the Archbishop of Canterbury. Forbidding him to crown "Albert" as king, the Archbishop's office declined to comment on the "institution" or "crowning" which had recently been received.

The former London politician, who calls himself "King Anthony the First," couches his "crowning" in legal phrases but they apparently have no legal status. Hall has been claiming to be the alleged direct descendant from the throne in 1208 he said the "Welsh or Windsor" as they began to call themselves during the Great War, were not of the Royal Blood of England.

DISMISSAL OF TEACHERS ONLY BY MAJORITY

Under a bill introduced into the house to amend the School Act of 1901 and the amending Act thereto passed earlier at the present session, disapproval of teachers would be made effective only after being confirmed by a majority vote of the electors of the school district, if steps were taken to make such a referendum. This amending bill was introduced by William Tomyn, M.C., Whitford, and had received royal reading in the house.

Behind the Headlines At Ottawa

By DEAN WILSON

A CLOSE observation of two departments of the Federal government in Ottawa discloses the fact that the Dominion officials are keeping a very close watch on the activities of any form of unionism that may try to stir up trouble in the peaceful ranks of Canadian labor circles.

The Federal Department of Labor in Ottawa has been a busy scene these "last few weeks and the Hon. Norman Rogers, who heads this department of the government, is known to be tolerant towards any peaceful form of labor organization in Canada, but he is a staunch enemy of violence such as the kind of action which marked the efforts of the C.I.O. to demonstrate by means of sit-down strikes in the plants of big industries.

The Department of Justice in Ottawa is fully prepared to cope with any emergency on the labor front. One of the main reasons for this is that it is contrary to the wishes of the majority of the members of this new industrial organization and no violence is desired by the labor leaders. However, in many instances these sit-down strikes did have repercussions of an undesirable type of public demonstration against capital in the automobile, merchandising and other branches of trade and industry in the United States.

SOLONS BREAK INTO SONG AS HOUSE CLOSES

'Sweet Adeline' and Lander Number Highlights Of Vocal Feast

OTTAWA, April 12.—Reverend raps on the door of the house of commons shortly after nine o'clock Saturday night by the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod broke up a busy and fairly harmonious rendition of "Sweet Adeline."

The members relaxing after a day of high pressure legislative duties and singing sitting from three o'clock in the afternoon had cleared the order paper at eight o'clock and took an hour off before parting.

parting in the formal prerogative by the Governor General.

The commotion returned to the chamber at nine o'clock. Speaker Cagrain in the chair, and broke out in "Sweet Adeline" in the chamber. The impromptu choruses were not confined to the chamber and one section of the chamber would be singing in "Sweet Adeline" and another simultaneously to "Home, Home on the Range."

When "Sweet Adeline" was started, however, everything was unanimous until the messenger from His Excellency arrived. "Will we let him in?" one of the members shouted. "Yes, I move we let him in," another replied.

With much more dignity the speaker ordered that the messenger be admitted. With the traditional obeisance, the Black Rod summoned the members to the senate and they trooped out to bring to an end the unusually short session.

PATENT RIGHTS SUPER-TARIFF. SAYS STEVENS

Radio Tube Prices in Canada Are Scandal, House Is Told

OTTAWA, April 12.—In the House on Saturday evening Hon. H. Stevens (Reform, Kootenay East) raised the question of the use of patent rights as a super-tariff. He stated that merchants in Canada should have the right to buy their goods wherever they liked provided they entered them for duty and paid the duty. Merchants were being harassed by claims for royalties on imported goods from Canadian patent holders, particularly on radio tubes and certain electrical apparatus.

Revenue Minister Oliver said patent holders were within their rights in asking to prevent the importation of articles which would infringe their patents. They had a right to exclusive sale and manufacture in Canada.

Mr. Oliver was unable to say whether patent holders were making an unreasonable use of their rights. If they were there were remedies under the patent act. Mr. Stevens said it was a wonder the prices Canadians were being compelled to pay for radio tubes.

FOUR-WAY TRACTION

Emergency ahead—stop QUICK! Your Goodyear diamond grip—stop in their tracks (Goodyear)—safe as houses!

Assurance against back-slipping when skidding here to stop. Precarious grades... skidding or backsliding grip, too!

When skids threaten no skidding—no skidding. Goodyear diamonds keep pointing aheadward—hold safe and true.

Four-Way Traction Gives You Safer Grip—Bigger Mileage!

With faster, more powerful cars crowding streets and highways, your growing need is for safe traction in tires—traction that grips as well after long mileage as when new. And only the four-way-pointing diamonds in Goodyear's famous tread give you the forward-backward-sideways grip you need continuously, faithfully, season after season.

This long-lasting tread pattern, based upon the known and tested greater ground-gripping safety of the diamond, is possessed by no other tire but Goodyear. Dozens of Goodyear's four-way-pointing diamonds roll between you and the road under all four wheels at all times.

Particularly at speeds above the average, and on roads precarious for ordinary tires, you can sense the surer control and greater stability provided by Goodyear four-way traction. It is a plus value without extra cost in long-lasting, carefree Goodyears.

Look at the four-pointed diamond tread of Four-Way Traction. A feature you can find in no other tire. It provides sure traction straight ahead, in curves, right and left—and in emergency situations the grip you need to keep you on the road.

TALKING AT HISTORY

Mr. Haslam, member for Clearmont, told the members of the legislature the other day they did not know what they were talking about. The bill under discussion was intended to give them a chance to find out what was aimed at and what it was proposed to do.

This is not the only measure of the present session that might have been profitably dealt with in the same way. History suggests that the distinction of being the first or only one whose members have been guilty of making speeches about it may be a half-baked and dangerous way of making laws to be brought down the important Government bills early in a session. There is no real reason why that cannot be done. If it were done, discussion would be more intelligent, sessions would probably be shorter, and there would be no half-baked legislation put into the statute book for courts to puzzle over and future sessions to amend.

MONEY WELL SPENT
Parliament has appropriated a million dollars which the Government will spend, in co-operation with the provincial authorities, in training young men in the trades, in technical schools and elsewhere.

This is altogether praiseworthy. Young Canadians have to retrain years in being unemployed, not opportunity to qualify themselves for work as artisans and tradesmen such as they were before. Apparently, however, the lack of funds kept vast numbers of them away from the facilities offered by technical schools.

While the young men have been kept out of trades, the older trained men have been drifting along toward the border-line of employability. As the country moves into the new era, there will be openings for the young men who are to be given the chance to make up for lost time in the matter of training. It is a pity that, should recovery come quickly, there may be a positive scarcity of skilled workmen for many of the jobs.

From the public standpoint, as from that of the young men who may acquire the training to be provided, this million dollars will be money well spent. A million dollars can be spent in any other way to the same end, in addition to that already being spent to maintain schools and other places of industrial training.

WHAT IS THE PLAN?
The bill for the reduction and settlement of debts is to be closed over until the members return two months hence to wind up the business of the session.

This course has the disadvantage of leaving matters in a state of uncertainty. It has the offsetting advantage that it will give the mortgage companies and other lending institutions another opportunity to present the plans for voluntary adjustment of debts which they now are so anxious to carry out.

That they will make use of this opportunity is by no means certain. History suggests they will not if they think the postponement of the legislation shows a weakening of the will to compel adjustment of debts. It may be a coverable intent or willingness to reduce debts until the legislature look action to compel them to be reduced. There is no reason to prevent a voluntary scheme of adjustment being carried out since that first attempt was made, but evidently nothing of the kind has occurred.

The evidence is plain that the mortgage companies only developed a willingness to compromise with their debtors when they saw it was a choice between complete default and compromise. And their present plan to the Premier for free-will reduction is based on the fact that a second compulsory bill will be introduced.

It may be assumed that everyone would rather debts should be reduced by voluntary action on the part of creditors than they should be reduced by a second compulsory bill. If they are reduced to a point of fairness and parity, if that is what the loaning organizations now have in mind, the postponement of the bill will give them an opportunity to present their plan.

VOLUNTEERS FOR MARTYRDOM

Forty-three members of the legislature are prepared to step out of public life in order that the taxpayers may have the annual session of the legislature. And the Minister is prepared to go back to teaching school, practicing law, and scrambling for dollars in the hurly-burly of business life, in order that the cost of government in Alberta may be reduced by the amount of their salaries.

So it is to be gathered from the love feast which followed the introduction of Mr. Anderson's proposal that membership in the legislature is not so great, and that the salaries must be correspondingly reduced in number. The members grew positively bawdy over the idea. But they are not going to do it right away. Nor during the life of the present legislature. The farthest the enthusiastic redoubters got was to agree that a committee be appointed to study the matter and report back some time in the future.

When, it may be suspected, the strength of the urge to martyrdom will depend upon the chance of getting no salary. Members who feel that their statehood will be rewarded by re-election to the next legislature, will naturally not wish to deprive the public of their services. Those who see that their political future is all behind them may be willing to wipe out their constituencies and thus sacrifice rival aspirants for their legislative careers.

This course on the supposition that the members of the present legislature of Alberta are contented on much the same lines as their predecessors and as members of other law-making bodies. But they may not be. There are reasons to believe that a good many of them are not. The like of some of them has not been seen before. Who knows? Perhaps by the time another three years have rolled around forty-three of them will be ready to commit hari-kari.

Dr. F. McElroy
Practically every thin person has at some time tried to gain weight by stuffing on rich, "fattening" foods, only to find that the few ounces added at first were not permanent, and possibly he developed other difficulties or lived a miserable life from getting more than he could digest.

Most underweight patients who have had this experience become discouraged and decide they will try as they will, that will never add another pound. However, they do not stop worrying over their lack of flesh and the continued worry only serves to make a thinner man ever. Sometimes, during his two or three years' reading the statistics of Insurance Companies which tend to prove that those who are underweight live longer than those who are overweight, but as a general rule, they have this persistent desire to bring the weight closer to normal.

Oddly enough, the quickest way for most people to gain weight is to get thinner first. Most thin patients will be dismayed at the prospect of losing weight, but if they do so, however, those who are willing to lose a few pounds at first will find that the weight gained afterward is usually a lasting gain as the initial treatment has improved the digestive powers through allowing the organs of digestion a chance to rest and become stronger.

A tendency to anorexia is associated with poor digestion, catarrhal troubles of all kinds, a tendency to nervousness, prostration, or constipation. Extreme thinness is frequently found in many diseases, and is a characteristic of that type of thinness found in the patient who has a fair amount of health and whose chief complaint is that he can't eat.

The one who is at of the slender type should remember that he may come from a family with a tendency to a lean body. In this case it is impossible by food and rest to build up an attractive, shapely body of the race-type and the patient may enjoy plenty of physical and mental alertness, but it is not possible to develop the bulk and bulkiness of the one of the plough-type body, who is built so differently.

There is the case of the average thin patient: he has developed a systemic toxemia which interferes with the normal chemical reactions in the body. I usually suggest that the thin person, therefore, start by taking a small quantity of these toxins may be gotten rid of, and in order to give the digestive organs a rest. When the patient then feels better, he usually begins to build up because the digestive organs are in a position to make good use of the foods eaten. This fatting may seem strange, but if you will use rest and food, you can gain weight.

In tomorrow's article, I will tell you more about how to gain weight.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
QUESTION: Mrs. B. E. K. writes: "Is there any truth in the statement that the use of aluminum cooking pans is bad for health?"

ANSWER: I recommend aluminum wares and have found no reason to believe that its use is injurious to health. On the contrary, cooking vegetables in the heavy aluminum vessels should be beneficial to health as this method of cooking allows you to serve well-flavored vegetables which have been prepared without adding water, thus conserving the food minerals in these foods.

The consensus of opinion is that aluminum vessels are perfect as far as they go. I investigate the use of this type of cooking ware from an unbiased standpoint arrive at the same conclusion. Go ahead and use it, and you will probably give your family the pleasure of enjoying well-cooked meats and vegetables.

QUESTION: "How much sleep do you get?" "How much sleep should a girl of 16 get?" I want to sleep all the time and 12 hours is not too much."

ANSWER: If 8 hours of sleep do not refresh you it is because your body is burdened with toxins from faulty habits of living, or because you are burning up nervous energy too fast, thus being consumed by it. A physician's examination has failed to disclose any definite disease, you may rest assured that you will regain a good, healthy living habit, and you will eliminate the accumulated systemic wastes.

QUESTION: Trina B. asks: "Since having a permanent my hair seems to be growing very fast, faster. Do you think that way is the cause?"

ANSWER: If the hair has grown more rapidly following the permanent treatment, it is probably due to the fact that the roots were stimulated. However, yours happens to be the first case of this kind I have seen, and probably such stimulation of growth is not an invariable result of permanent waving.

Gaining Healthy Weight

By DOCTOR FRANK MCELROY

With the exception of a few thin people who are underweight because they do not eat enough, gaining healthy weight is usually a difficult problem for the one who is conscious that the addition of a few more pounds would make him look better and feel better. As a general rule, it is easier for the one who is easy plump to lose weight than it is for the extremely slender person to add ten pounds. The stout person usually has an excellent digestion and gets all of the good out of the foods eaten and therefore weight reduction becomes merely a problem of cutting down on the amount of nourishing food habitually taken, while the thin person usually has a weak digestive apparatus and fails to use food to good advantage. Thus, the fat person becomes thinner by eating less and the reverse of this rule is not true and the thin person cannot become fatter by eating more.

Practically every thin person has at some time tried to gain weight by stuffing on rich, "fattening" foods, only to find that the few ounces added at first were not permanent, and possibly he developed other difficulties or lived a miserable life from getting more than he could digest.

Most underweight patients who have had this experience become discouraged and decide they will try as they will, that will never add another pound. However, they do not stop worrying over their lack of flesh and the continued worry only serves to make a thinner man ever. Sometimes, during his two or three years' reading the statistics of Insurance Companies which tend to prove that those who are underweight live longer than those who are overweight, but as a general rule, they have this persistent desire to bring the weight closer to normal.

Oddly enough, the quickest way for most people to gain weight is to get thinner first. Most thin patients will be dismayed at the prospect of losing weight, but if they do so, however, those who are willing to lose a few pounds at first will find that the weight gained afterward is usually a lasting gain as the initial treatment has improved the digestive powers through allowing the organs of digestion a chance to rest and become stronger.

A tendency to anorexia is associated with poor digestion, catarrhal troubles of all kinds, a tendency to nervousness, prostration, or constipation. Extreme thinness is frequently found in many diseases, and is a characteristic of that type of thinness found in the patient who has a fair amount of health and whose chief complaint is that he can't eat.

The one who is at of the slender type should remember that he may come from a family with a tendency to a lean body. In this case it is impossible by food and rest to build up an attractive, shapely body of the race-type and the patient may enjoy plenty of physical and mental alertness, but it is not possible to develop the bulk and bulkiness of the one of the plough-type body, who is built so differently.

There is the case of the average thin patient: he has developed a systemic toxemia which interferes with the normal chemical reactions in the body. I usually suggest that the thin person, therefore, start by taking a small quantity of these toxins may be gotten rid of, and in order to give the digestive organs a rest. When the patient then feels better, he usually begins to build up because the digestive organs are in a position to make good use of the foods eaten. This fatting may seem strange, but if you will use rest and food, you can gain weight.

In tomorrow's article, I will tell you more about how to gain weight.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
QUESTION: Mrs. B. E. K. writes: "Is there any truth in the statement that the use of aluminum cooking pans is bad for health?"

ANSWER: I recommend aluminum wares and have found no reason to believe that its use is injurious to health. On the contrary, cooking vegetables in the heavy aluminum vessels should be beneficial to health as this method of cooking allows you to serve well-flavored vegetables which have been prepared without adding water, thus conserving the food minerals in these foods.

The consensus of opinion is that aluminum vessels are perfect as far as they go. I investigate the use of this type of cooking ware from an unbiased standpoint arrive at the same conclusion. Go ahead and use it, and you will probably give your family the pleasure of enjoying well-cooked meats and vegetables.

QUESTION: "How much sleep do you get?" "How much sleep should a girl of 16 get?" I want to sleep all the time and 12 hours is not too much."

ANSWER: If 8 hours of sleep do not refresh you it is because your body is burdened with toxins from faulty habits of living, or because you are burning up nervous energy too fast, thus being consumed by it. A physician's examination has failed to disclose any definite disease, you may rest assured that you will regain a good, healthy living habit, and you will eliminate the accumulated systemic wastes.

QUESTION: Trina B. asks: "Since having a permanent my hair seems to be growing very fast, faster. Do you think that way is the cause?"

ANSWER: If the hair has grown more rapidly following the permanent treatment, it is probably due to the fact that the roots were stimulated. However, yours happens to be the first case of this kind I have seen, and probably such stimulation of growth is not an invariable result of permanent waving.

The Passing Show

A London despatch a few days ago told of the $7,640,415 estate left by the eccentric Lady Houston. (This estate seems a huge amount of money for any person to leave.)

Though Lady Houston, who was a warehouseman's daughter, never rose so high in the social scale as a certain British peeress, her big money. Add to these examples that Lord Lansdowne has Grace Fields who declared an income of $800,000 last year, and you'll have to admit that Old England offers opportunities for social and financial advancement to young women of ambition and parts.

So many of us have assured one another that we cannot spend the income of a million dollars, it may be helpful to find out how Britain's "Lady Bountiful" managed to spend not merely the income, but the principal of several millions of dollars within a few years.

Except that she remained with two of her three husbands until they were parted by death, Lady Houston was a most successful career woman. In the first of her marriages, she married the son of her grandfather who tried hard to conceal her age and origin, but at Somerset House revealed that Fanny Lady's husband was the daughter of a humble warehouseman at Kensington Green on April 8, 1857.

Her first husband, whom she divorced after 12 years of married life, was the late Sir Theodore Francis Brinkman, but, has since fallen heir to a baronetcy. She probably had a better view than had for her first husband, 26 at the time of her first marriage, by an error of calculation she filled in her age on the marriage certificate as 24.

Fanny's second husband also had expectations, but they were more quickly realized than those of her first. He became in due course the ninth Lord Byron.

It may encourage some of the gals to know that Fanny made her third and most financially successful marriage to a man of her own rank, married Sir Robert Houston, Bart, well known Liverpool shipowner. The Houston Line—known among the foreward hands as the "Starvation Line"—carries on a large trade in South America.

Shipping is to England what farming is to Canada. The shipowner is associated with poverty and demanding government assistance. So well did Sir Robert fight to keep the Houston Line afloat, that he was leaving Fanny about $600,000.

For a Liverpool Conservator, and for many years M.P. for a Liberal seat, he sought before his death to achieve residence in the Channel Islands, and made the payment of death duties to the British Treasury. Just when it looked as if the Treasury was doomed to defeat in the case of the Houston Line, Sir Robert died.

Thereafter, his Ladyship became Public Benefactress Number One in England.

She financed Britain's entry in the Schneider Cup air race, enabling Britain to win the coveted trophy. She also financed the building of an airplane flight over Mount Everest. Three times she offered the British Government $500,000 toward the defense of London against the air raids of the Germans.

She was refused. She had an admiration for the Grimsby trawler Lady Pat as it is called in Trinidad, and despatched an ex-convict officer and crew to bring it home. It is to be presented to the Grimsby fishing crew who stole the vessel from the Germans, upon their release from their English prison.

So much for her philanthropy and benefactions. Now for her eccentricities.

Lady Houston believed she was possessed of a magic touch to soothe nervous disorders. She used to tell her friends that she had cured them twice during their two years of married life, by her magic touch. Her eccentricities of claim were that the residents of the island of Malta, a royal court a month after the death of Sir Robert, and had a curator appointed to look after her person and property on the ground of mental unsoundness.

A few weeks later she petitioned the court for rehabilitation. Seven great London specialists in mental cases came to her aid, and she came with grief at her husband's death and was quite capable of attending to her affairs. When the court restored her rights, Lady Houston showed her gratitude by calling in person on each of the seven specialists to thank them. She left on the dressing table of each a blank cheque in her envelope.

As a super-particular who regarded Ramsay MacDonald and Stanley Baldwin as traitors and traitors, she was a great admirer of the Saturday Review in order to attack them.

She had her secretary engage fifty women at first to make up the household, and then a hundred in red, white and blue, to resemble the cover of the Review. Their task was to parade round the household, carrying scrolls on which were inscribed "Baldwin is a traitor" and "MacDonald is a traitor to British Empire." When the police interfered she had her magnificent household staff of 100 women to parade round the house with Neon letters three feet high proclaiming the two traitors to be traitors to their country.

She was a magnificent person, and she was a woman of great spirit. For that period, her ladyship would walk the deck, arrayed as was Eve before the Fall. She was a bonny looking woman until the end, and insisted it was the daily exposure to the elements that kept her young and full of blood.

Spain Seen As World-Wide War If Rebels Win

Who's Who

Interpreting the Spanish civil war, not as a clash between people from different areas, one country, but as a struggle between two great forces in the world today, and stating that the struggle in Spain represents the front line of the world war, will spread across the rest of Europe and the world, Dr. Anna Louise Brown, formerly connected with American relief administration among children in stricken Russia, and ex-editor of the Moscow News, spoke to an audience that filled every available seat in the Empire Theatre Sunday evening.

With the avowed purpose of appealing for the Spanish hospitalization fund, Dr. Brown's speech at the conclusion of her lecture netted $450.

FACTS JUST BLINDS

Speaking of the non-intervention policy of European countries, Dr. Brown described them as "just facts just blinds" and said that Italy sent aid to Franco's troops while the allied countries refrained from doing so.

Dr. Brown commented the attitude of the people's front movement in France but explained their position as a result of the British who helped to France. "If you have a British Empire, you have a British Empire," she said.

Spain, through your support of the Spanish government forces, Britain can do no more to help to this crystallizing Franco's old fear of the Spanish people.

Dr. Brown also spoke of the British volunteers.

BRITISH VOLUNTEERS

Dr. Brown said that the British people in all parts of the world who realized the full import of the struggle in Spain, had been helping to the Spanish government forces.

HALL BURNED DOUKHOBOR NEW OUTBREAK

Curfew Ordered in Kootenai Area—Buildings Under Guard

NELO, B.C., April 12.—The Kootenai police last night initiated a 10 p.m. curfew for all Doukhobors in the Kootenai district where a Doukhobor community hall was fired by an incendiary bomb Saturday night. The fire was announced at police headquarters here.

CASLEBAR, B.C., April 12.—The Kootenai Doukhobors of this West Kootenai community last night were warned to leave their homes and buildings in the district where the fire occurred. The Doukhobors were asked to leave their homes and buildings in the district where the fire occurred.

The Doukhobors, who comprise some 1,000 independent Doukhobors and those who are independent but still members of the Orthodox Christian Community of Universal Brotherhood, were asked to leave their homes and buildings in the district where the fire occurred.

LIVING IN FEAR
In addition to their plea to the public, the Doukhobors have issued a newspaper appeal to the public asking that all Doukhobors be treated with respect and that they be allowed to live in peace.

MAN ARRESTED
British Columbia police, continuing their investigation of the Doukhobor fire, today arrested Peter Sevoikov, a member of the Doukhobor community, on charges of arson.

Today guards were kept posted at public and private buildings in the district where the fire occurred. The Doukhobors were asked to leave their homes and buildings in the district where the fire occurred.

As Doukhobor Bill Nimitzke, released from prison for the four unidentified incendiaries who overpowered him and fired the Russian Community hall was charged with arson, the Doukhobors are now in a state of panic.

GIRL IS JAILED
A Doukhobor girl was arrested on charges of arson when she was found in the district where the fire occurred. She was charged with arson when she was found in the district where the fire occurred.

Today all Doukhobor buildings in the district where the fire occurred were under guard. The Doukhobors were asked to leave their homes and buildings in the district where the fire occurred.

AMERICAN BATTLE INSPIRATION SERMON HERE

Case For League Of Nations Pleaded By Dr. George A. Macdonald

Calling upon Canadians to be the spearhead in the new peace movement, Dr. George A. Macdonald, the famous English writer and peace advocate, today delivered a sermon at Knox church in Edmonton.

Dr. Macdonald delivered his sermon to mark the observance of the battle of Vimy Ridge, "the day which witnessed the full birth of Canadian arms to nationhood."
